Overview

The University of North Carolina at Charlotte ranks 20 out of 257 schools in the 2026 College Free Speech Rankings with a score of 71, earning a C- speech climate grade. The campus earns a “green light” Spotlight rating, and the University of North Carolina System has adopted both the Chicago Statement and institutional neutrality, both of which apply to its Charlotte campus.

Student sentiment, however, paints a more troubled picture. The school places in the bottom 50 for both “Self-Censorship” and “Openness,” signaling that many hesitate to voice controversial views and feel limited in the range of topics they can discuss. The university also incurred a small penalty after protests led to a substantial disruption of an event featuring Israeli Defense Forces soldiers.

UNC Charlotte could bolster its free speech climate by continuing to educate students about policies surrounding expressive activities.”
