Overview

Twelve Texas schools are ranked in the 2026 College Free Speech Rankings. The state's average speech-climate grade is F, matching the national average. The University of Texas System Board of Regents has adopted both the pro-free speech Chicago Statement and a statement on institutional neutrality, applying to all UT campuses in the rankings.

The University of Texas at El Paso ranks 42 overall and is the top-ranked school in the state. UTEP performs well on "Self-Censorship," suggesting students are more willing to express their views openly.

Texas A&M University-College Station ranks 47 and is the only Texas campus with a "green light" rating in FIRE's Spotlight database, meaning its written policies do not seriously threaten student expression. Texas A&M also performs well on "Political Tolerance" and "Disruptive Conduct," indicating students are more open to controversial speakers and less likely to support shutting them down. Texas A&M has not adopted the pro-free speech Chicago Statement or a statement on institutional neutrality. Rice University and the University of Texas at Dallas rank near the bottom and hold "red light" ratings, meaning their written policies clearly and substantially restrict protected expression. Reforming restrictive policies at private and lower-performing public schools would help strengthen these schools' free-speech climates.
